INTRODUCTION

Village Name : Akkireddepalem
Mandal : Anakapalli
District : Anakapalli
State : Andhra Pradesh

My village is a place that I like to visit in my holidays or whenever I feel tired and want to relax. A village is a place that is far away from the pollution and noise of the city. Also, you feel a connection with the soil in a village. Around more than 70% of India's population resides in villages. Likewise, villages are the main source of food and agricultural produce that we consume. After independence, the villages have grown much in both population as well as education. The village is important because it is the primary sector of agricultural production of our country.

The village is the back bone of India's economy. It also plays a major role in maintaining the ecological balance of the environment. Villages are mostly covered with trees and plants and my village name is Akkireddepalem.

A village is called the rural part of the country. It is called rural because it does not have modern facilities like cities. The main occupation of the villages is farming. They are the primary source of the nation's agricultural production. The beauty of nature can be experienced in any village as it is surrounded by trees, flowers, hills, streams. There is no pollution in my village and one can feel the freshness.

My village is a small village with a population of only six hundred forty five people. My village name is Akkireddepalem near to the Anakapalli. There is a temple at the entrance of the village where often prayers and other worshipping activities are taking place. There are so many hills around the temple and our village is surrounded by hills, neem trees and with so many palm trees.

Akkireddepalem is a village in Anakapalli mandal in Visakhapatnam district of Andhra Pradesh state, India. Akkireddepalem pincode is 531002. It is located 27km towards west from district head quarter, Visakhapatnam. In my village, summer is a season of harvest of leafy vegetables and chillies. So I have seen those crops. Besides earlier there was to be more kutchra house but now the scenario has changed and the number of pakka houses have increased. My village is filled and surrounded by greenery. There are so many cows and buffalos which give healthy milk to us. My village is very near to the Anakapalli.

The Anakapalli town is famous for its Jaggery market. Its market is ranked second in India in terms of Jaggery imports and exports. Also India is the second most populated nation of the world and to feed this big population, they need food which comes from the village. This describes why they are important to us and everybody.

Plant diseases

A plant is called healthy or normal only so long it carries out its physiological activities to the best of its genetic potentiality and thus maintains this appearance similar to other healthy plants of the same variety and gives the best expected yield. The physiological activities include normal cell division, differentiation and development; uptake of water and minerals from the soil and translocation of these throughout the body, synthesis of food from sunlight (photosynthesis) and translocation of the photosynthetic products to areas of utilization or storage; metabolism of synthesized materials and reproduction.

Whenever a healthy or normal plant is disturbed by certain causes, one or more of its above mentioned physiological functions are interfered with beyond a certain deviation level from the normal, then the plant is considered to be diseased. When we say that a plant is diseased, then the question arises, what is disease? Disease is said to be a "continuous malfunction" in plants. Many scientists have defined "disease" time and again, but still one has to wait for a non-controversial definition. A working definition of plant disease can be stated as "A disease is the manifestation of a condition wherein any disturbance brought about by an animate (living) or inanimate (non-living) factor interfering with normal physiological functions".

Significance of plant disease, their socio economic impacts:

Plant diseases are significant as they affect everyone directly or indirectly by causing damage to plant and plant products. Plant diseases generally make a difference in their happy life and sometimes result in life haunted by hunger or even death due to starvation.

Important historical events that occur due to plant diseases:

Destruction of food and feed resources by plant disease has resulted in malnutrition, starvation, migration and even death of people and animals on many occasions in the past and has created famines and occasionally had changed the course of history and are well documented in the books of the history.

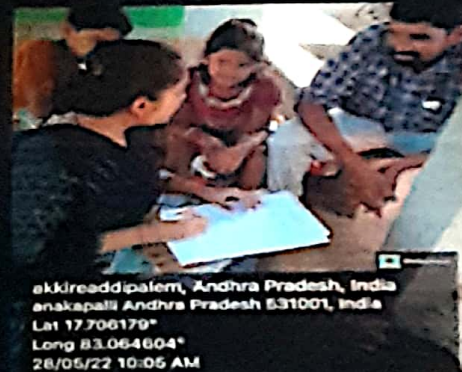

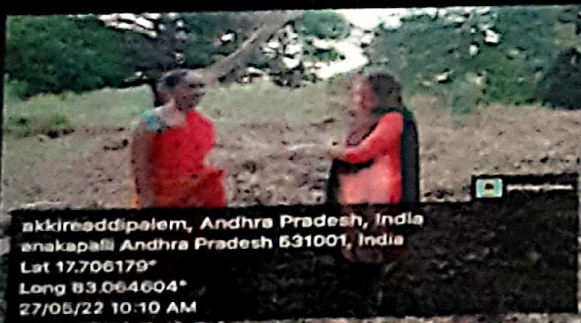

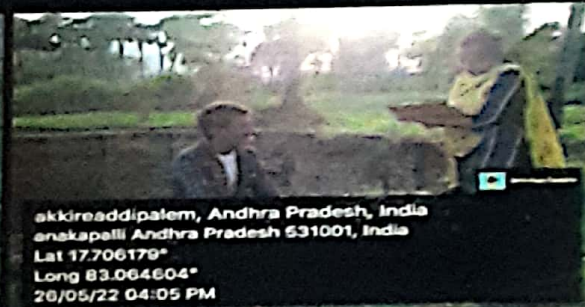

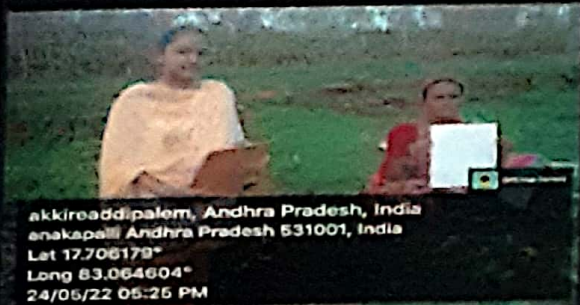

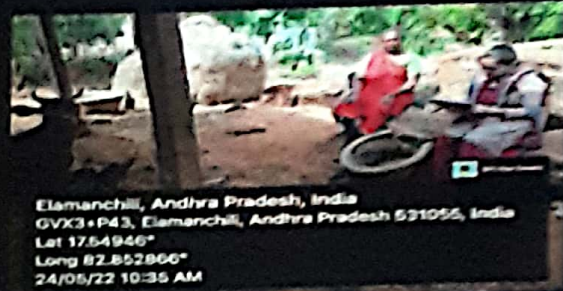

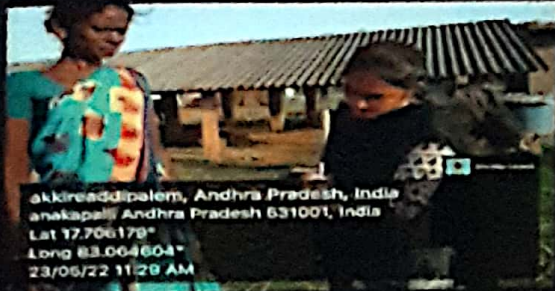

Sample of such historical events are as under

1. The epidemic of late blight of potato (Phytophthora infestans) during 1845 to 1846 in Ireland can never be forgotten and will always deserve mention while blocking of what a plant disease can do to change the course of history, the political status and economical policies of a nation.
2. The epidemic of Downy mildew, disease of grape wine caused by the Plasmopara Viticola during 1878 to 1882 was so severe that the very existence of wine industry in France was threatened.
3. The lethal yellow disease of coconut plants in 1900 (now known to be caused by MLO) forced the Cuban people to shift over to sugarcane plantation from coconut.
4. The epidemic of bunchy top disease of banana caused by a virus during 1921 almost completely destroyed banana industry in New South Wales and Queensland in Australia.
5. During 1974-78, the coffee rust disease caused by Hemelia Vastatrix caused colossal losses in Brazil.

In India, crop diseases damaged food grains and other products to the tune of Rs. 500 crores every year amounting to 18% of the total production. In the decreasing order of importance are weeds (32%) diseases (26%), rodents (8%), storage pests (7%) and the percentage of total loss being mentioned in the parenthesis.

IMPORTANCE OF PLANT DISEASES, SCOPE AND OBJECTIVES OF PLANT PATHOLOGY

Plant pathology is a branch of agricultural science that deals with the study of fungi, bacteria, virus, nematodes, and other microbes that cause diseases of plants. Plant diseases and disorders make plants suffer, either kill or reduce their ability to survive/ reproduce. Any abnormal condition that alters the appearance or function of plants is called plant disease.

The term "Pathology" is derived from two Greek words "Pathos" and "logos", "pathos" means suffering and "logos" means to study / knowledge. Therefore pathology means 'study of suffering'. Thus the plant pathology or Phytopathology (Gr. Phytos = plant) is the branch of biology that deals with the study of suffering plants. It is both science of learning and understanding the nature of disease.

Scope of Plant Pathology: Scope and responsibilities of plant pathology is unlimited. Its ultimate goal is to prevent and control plant diseases of economic importance. Responsibilities of the science of Plant Pathology may be summarized as under. Plant pathology uses algorithms to integrate and analyse the captured images and data to provide a detailed report on the health accurately and faster to detect diseases and pests in plants. This helps farmers in early treatment technique while substantially reducing economic losses.

Plant Pathology includes

- Study of etiology, symptoms, predisposing factors and recurrence of such diseases.
- Plant Pathology deals with different aspects of plant diseases and has wide scope than human pathology which only deals with one aspect i.e., plant health.
- The branch focusses on understanding how hosts, pathogens and environment interact to cause plant diseases and on understanding how to control plant diseases.

Objectives of plant pathology plant Pathology (Phyto Patholgy) deals with the cause etiology, resulting losses and control or management of the plant diseases. The objectives of the plant pathology are the study of

- The living entities that cause diseases in plants.
- The non-living entities and the environmental conditions that cause disorder in plants.
- The mechanisms by which the disease causing agents produce diseases.
- The interactions between the disease causing agents and host plant in relation to overall environment.
- The method of preventing or management of the diseases and reducing the losses/damages caused by diseases.

The science of plant pathology has four main objectives

1. To study the living, non-living and environmental causes of plants diseases. (etiology)
2. To study the mechanisms of disease development by pathogens.
3. To study the interactions between the plants and the pathogens.
4. To develop the methods of controlling the disease and reducing the losses caused by them.

METHODOLOGY

Main crops grown in our village are sugar cane and chillies.

Introduction

Sugar cane is the main source of sugar in India and holds up prominent position as a cash crop. India is the world's largest consumer and the second largest producer of sugar, topped only by the Brazil. It is the one of the most important food-cum-cash crop grown in the country, providing employment to a larger number of people.

I have used questionnaire method to obtain required data on plant diseases of a village from farmers.

In which season sugar cane crop is cultivated?

Sugar cane is able to grow over a prolonged season under warm, humid conditions. It can continue its growth unless terminated by flowering temperature above 50°C , arrest its growth, those below 20°C slow. The crop does best in the tropical region, receiving the rainfall of 750 to 1200 mm. For ripening, it needs a cool dry season, but where rainfall is too heavy and prolonged the quality of the juice tends to be low.

What is the soil in our village? In which soil is sugar cane grown?

Sugar cane can be grown in all types of soil, ranging from sandy loam to clay loam. It can also be raised successfully on lighter soils, provided there is adequate irrigation facilities and on heavy clay with proper drainage and addition of organic matter.

What are the diseases that affect the sugar cane crop?

- Wilt
- Grassy shoot

- Smut
- Leaf scald disease
- Red striped disease.
- Mosaic disease
- Pokkahboeng
- Rust
- Sugarcane yellow leaf disease

Red rot of sugar cane is the main disease that affects Sugar cane crop in our village, so I have collected data of this disease.

The spindle leaves (3rd and 14th) display drying. At a later stage, stocks become discoloured and hollow. Acervuli (black fruiting bodies) develop on rind and nodes. After splitting open the diseased stalk, a sour smell emanates. The internal tissues are reddened with intermingled transverse white spots.

What are the crops used in crop rotation for sugar cane crop?

1. In heavy rainfall areas, sugar cane is rotated with rice.
2. In low rainfall areas, sugar cane is rotated with cotton.
3. For long rotation purpose, Sugar cane is rotated with banana and turmeric.
4. Mung/Udid/Soyabean- pre seasonal cane- ratoon- Summer groundnut.
5. Cotton/tur-sugarcane- ratoon – summer groundnut.
6. Onion, coriander, potato may be taken as intercrops in sugarcane which gives additional income to the farmers.

How much irrigation should be done for the sugar cane crop?

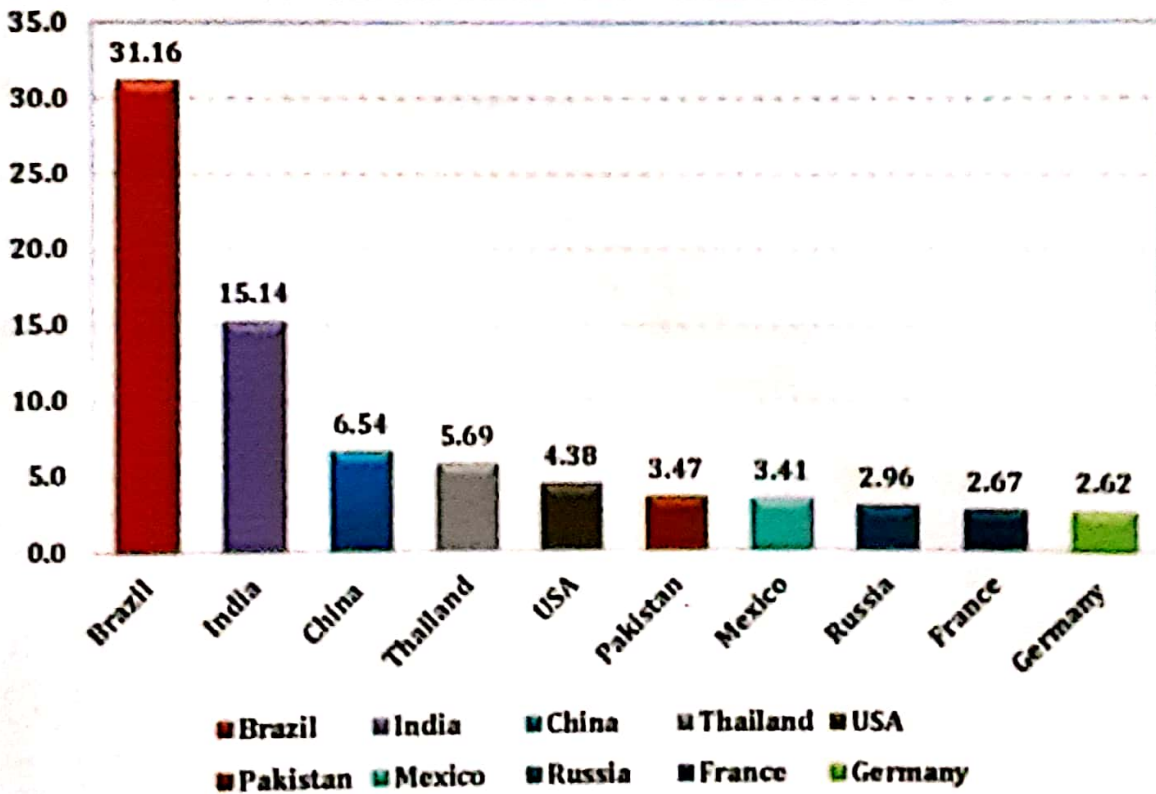

- Water requirement of sugar cane varies from 2000 to 2500 mm depending upon the duration, soil type, and climatological factors.
- During germination phase (1-35 days), there should be enough moisture in the soil for better germination, but waterlogging is undesirable as it leads to rotting of setts.

- Irrigation at 10 days interval during Tillering stage(36-100 days) is sufficient.
- Irrigation will have to be stopped at 15 days prior to harvest.

How much yield do you get on sugar cane crop?

The average field of 11 to 12 month old plant crop under commercial cultivation is 100 tons per hectare in case of sure, 170 tonnes per hectare for Adsali and 120 tonnes per hectare in case of pre seasonal sugarcane.

Country wise Production of Sugarcane Crop

Chillies

- Chilly is one of the most valuable crop in India.

- The crop is grown largely for its fruits all over India.
- It is used in India as a principal ingredient of various curries and chutneys. It is also used for vegetables, spices, condiments, sauce and pickles.
- Dry chillies are used for Curry powder.
- The red colour chilli is due to "Capsanthin", pungency in chillies is due to the active constituent "Capsaicin", an alkaloid is extracted from chillies and is used as the medicine.

In which season chillies crop is cultivated?

- The chilli is a plant of a tropical and subtropical region. It grows well in warm and humid climate, and a temperature of 20 to 25°C.
- As a rained crop, it is grown in areas receiving annual precipitation of 25 to 30 inches.

What is the soil in our village? In which soil is chilli crop cultivated?

Chilli can be grown in a range of soils but black soils which retain moisture for long period are suitable for rained crop whereas wet drained soils, deltaic soils, and sandy loams are good under irrigated condition.

What are the diseases that affect the chilli crop?

- Damping off
- Die-back and Anthracnose (fruit rot)
- Choanephora blight /wet rot
- Mosaic complex
- Powdery mildew
- Cercospora leaf spot
- Bacterial leaf spot
- Alternaria leaf spot

What are the crops used in crop rotation for chilli crop?

1. Rained chilli crop is rotated with crops like jawar, bajra and wheat.

2. Irrigation chilli crop is rotated with sugarcane , turmeric and pulses.

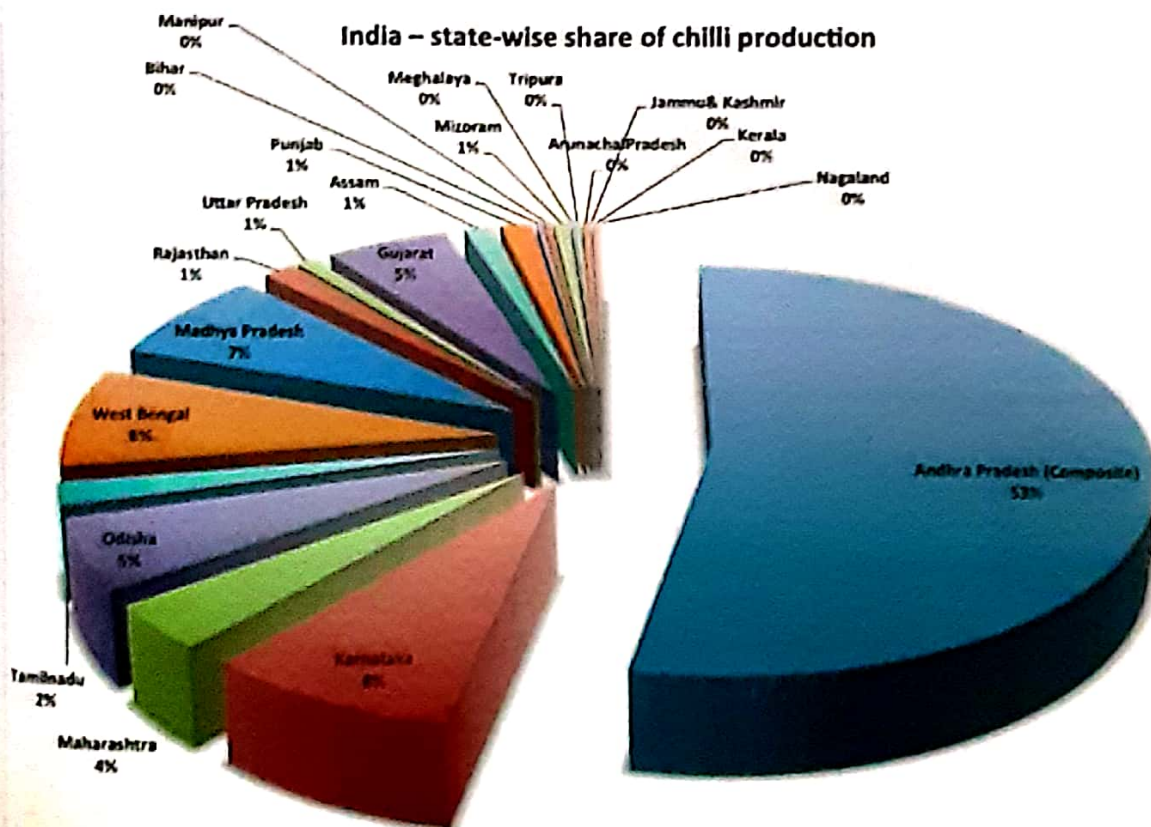

How much irrigation should be done for the chilli crop?

1. In case of kharif, chilli crop irrigation is not required if timely rains are received during rainy season.
2. But under dry spell, one to two irrigations may be given by opening furrows between the rows.
3. In the case of rabi crop, irrigation are given at 15 to 20 days interval.
4. In case of summer crop, it is given at 8 to 10 days interval.

How much yield /import do you get on chilli crop ?

Yield about 6.74t/ha of dry pod and 28.10t/ha of green chilli in a crop duration of 195-205 days.

Fresh chilli yield varies from 30-40 quintal per acre. we get 25-36 kg of dried chilli from 100kg of fresh 7.5 to 10 quintals per acre.

Problem that I have identified in sugar cane and in Chillies

1. Red rot

symptoms of the disease

The spindle leaves display drying. At a later stage, stalks become discoloured and hollow. Acervuli [black fruiting bodies] develop on rind and nodes. After splitting open the diseased stalk, a sour smell emanates. The internal tissues are reddened with intermingled transverse white spots

Favourable conditions for transmission :

Primary transmission is through soil and disease setts, while the secondary transmission is through air, rain splash and soil.

2.Wilt

Disease symptoms:

Externally, gradual yellowing and drying of foliage, shrinkage /withering of canes. Internally light to dark purplish or brown discolouration of ground tissue, pithiness and boat shaped cavities in the middle of the internodes.

Favourable conditions for transmission:

The disease symptoms appear during the monsoon and post monsoon periods. Affected plants are present either singly or in small groups.

In chilli crop

1. Damping off

1. Causal organism: Pythium aphanidermatum [Edson]

Symptoms

- Disease of nursey beds and young seedlings resulting in reduced seed germination and poor stand of seedlings, very high seedlings mortality 25-75 %.
- Water soaked lesion formation at collar region .
- Infected areas turn brown and rot.
- Plant shrivelled and collapse as a result of softening of tissues.

2. Die -back and Anthracnose[fruit rot]

Causal organism : Colletotrichum spp.

Disease symptoms

- Disease is more in December -October in transplanted crop .
- Small, circular to irregular, brownish black scattered spots appear on leaves.
- Shedding of flowers due to the infection at pedicel and tips of branches.
- Small, circular, yellowish to pinkish sunken spots appear on fruits.
- Severe infections result in the shrivelling and drying of fruits.

Analysis of problem

Sugarcane diseases and their management

Fungus, bacteria and virus cause diseases to sugarcane crop. These are transmitted from one plant to another and one field to another field either by original seed set or causal organism already in the soil or spores are carried by blowing wind. Some of the diseases of sugarcane crop and their suggested control measures are discussed here.

1. Red rot disease

- This disease is caused by a fungus Colletotrichum falcatum.
- Red rot disease appears in July. Leaves start losing colour and withering.
- To control disease, if very few plants are affected ,then uproot these plants and burn them. otherwise discard the whole of the field and do not grow this crop in the same field for at least three years.
- Fresh sowing should be done with seed sets from resistant variety, dipping these in 0.25% solution of Agallol or Areton for 2-3 minutes.

Survival and spread

In rainy season, the disease spreads so fast that whole crop dries and not a single malleable cane is obtained.

2. Wilt

The disease is caused by a fungus Cephalosporium sacchari. The crown leaves become yellow during late season and cane dries.

To control the disease, if the affected plants are very few, then uproot these and burn them otherwise discard or burn the whole field, fresh sowings must be done with resistant variety.

Survival and spread

The wilt pathogens are transmitted through soil, seed pieces, wind, rain and irrigation water.

Chillies diseases and management

High soil moisture and relatively higher soil temperature favour the rapid development of the disease. The disease is further aggravated in ill-aerated soils with poor drainage having thick stand of the seedlings.

1. Damping off

Management

- Soil drenching with copper oxychloride 0.25%.
- Avoid shade places for nursery establishment .
- Use the recommended seed rate.
- Avoid flooding type of irrigation and maintain the optimum moisture level in the nursery.
- Use Thiram or captan 4g/kg of seeds for seed rate.

2. Die back /Anthracnose

Management

- Use of disease -free seeds is important in preventing the disease.
- Seed treatment with Thiram or captan 4g/kg is found to be effective in eliminating the seed borne inoculum.
- Good control of the disease has been reported by three spraying with ziram 0.25% or sulphur 0.2% or copper oxychloride 0.25% or zinc 0.15%. The first spraying should be given out just before flowering and the second at the time of fruit formation. Third spraying may be given fortnight after second spraying chilli cultivar BG-1, Loral and perennial s are found to be resistant against the disease.

ACTION PLAN FOR IMPLEMENTATION

Principles of plant disease management

Avoidance: It is preventing the contact between the host and the pathogen. It is done by identifying geographical area, selection of a proper field, planting time, disease escaping varieties and avoidance of insect vectors and weed hosts.

Exclusion: It means preventing the entrance and establishment of pathogens in uninfected crops in a particular area.

It can be achieved by quarantine, inspection and certification, seed treatment and also by using certified seed or plants, sorting bulbs before planting, discarding any that are planted and most importantly refusing obviously diseased specimens from dealers.

Eradication: It involves elimination of a pathogen once it is established on a plant or in a field. It can be done by crop rotation, sanitation, roguing, soil treatment, use of antagonists and heat and chemical treatment to diseased plant material.

Protection: It is the use of some protective barrier between the susceptible host and the pathogen. In most cases, a protective spray or dust is applied to the plant in advance of the occurrence of pathogen. Sometimes it is achieved by killing insects or other inoculating agents.

Host resistance / Immunization: It utilizes in built mechanism to resist various activities of pathogen. The infection or subsequent damage by pathogen can be rendered ineffective through genetic manipulation or by chemotherapy.

Therapy: Chemotherapy, thermotherapy are effective.

Integrated disease management: Integrated plant disease management can be defined as a decision-based process involving coordinated use of multiple tactics for optimizing the control of pathogens ecologically and economically. In most cases IDM consists of scouting with timely application of combination of strategies and tactics.

The basic objective of any IDM program should be to achieve at least the following

- Avoid creating conditions suitable for disease establishment and spread.
- Simultaneous management of multiple pathogens.
- Regular monitoring of pathogen effects and their natural enemies and antagonists.
- Integrated use of multiple Suppressive tactics.

Methods of plant disease management

- Maintain hygiene in nursery in Green House.
- Disease tolerant varieties: Use disease tolerant varieties/ hybrids which give good yield even if mildly infected by pathogen.
- Selection of seed: Select healthy seeds preferably from disease free plants to avoid seed borne disease.
- Removal of weeds: Field and surrounding areas should be kept clean and free from weeds as they harbour pathogens.

COMMUNITY AWARENESS PROGRAMME

Preventing plant diseases on farms.

Preventative practices can reduce on sugarcane and chilly diseases.

Water Management

- Mulch (either straw or plastic) prevents pathogens from splashing up from the soil when it rains.
- Use drip irrigation when possible, to add water near the roots of plants without splashing water onto the leaves.
- Maintain natural bodies of water and surround them with deep rooted perennial plants. Avoid surface water for irrigation when possible.

Sanitation

- Use clean seed to prevent new pathogens from entering the farm. If using saved seed, treat it with hot water.

- Start your days in the youngest, healthiest plants. After working in a field with disease pressure; wash your boots, tools and clothing.
- Wash your hands, clothes and shoes, clean your shoes with high pressure water as you move between fields and especially after visiting other farms.
- Wash your tools and equipment often especially after working in diseased plots. Make a central washing station that is conveniently located so you remember to use it.

Residue Management

- Rotate the plots where crop families are planted. For example, after planting beans, wait 3 years until you plant beans again in the same spot.
- Look for diseased plants at least weekly and identify all diseases. Once you have a diagnosis, seek resistant varieties the following year.
- Manage weeds in and around fields; they can serve as hosts for various diseases.
- Remove infected plants and their neighbors to prevent the spread of pathogens to healthy plant. Only remove diseased leaves when plants are dry, and no rain is forecasted.
- Perform crop rotation.
- Destroy diseased plant material upon identification.
- Avoid wet environment.
- Control pests.

RECOMMENDATIONS AND CONCLUSION

Management Strategies of Red rot disease In sugarcane :-

Cultural method

- The best way to control red rot is to select setts for planting from healthy plants in a disease free area.
- The red rot affected field must be rotated with rice for one season and other crops for two seasons.

Physical method

- The cut ends and entire setts should be dipped in a fungicide solution, such as one percent Bordeaux mixture.
- If the disease is noticed in the field, the leaves and canes should be collected and destroyed by burning.

Management strategies of wilt disease In sugarcane :-

Dipping the setts in 40 ppm of boron or manganese or spraying the plants with either of these minor elements reduces the disease intensity.

Sett treatment with fungicide like Bavistin 0.1per cent before planting. Apply carbendazim 2gm/lit of water at the root zone area and same as follow at 15 days interval.

Management strategies of damping off disease in chillies :-

- Maintain proper spacing, 12 to 18 inch plant to plant and 24 to 30 inch row to row.
- Supply adequate moisture but do not over water and avoid working with plants when the soil is wet.
- Keep good air circulation around plants seedlings, and don't plant seeds too deep.

Management strategies of Die back disease in chillies :-

- Use disease free seeds.
- Use seed treatment with Tirichoderma viride 10g/kg to manage the disease in a biological way.
- Alternatively, use chemical seed treatment of thiram or captan 4g/kg.

- The first spraying should be given just before flowering and the second at the time of fruit formation. The third spraying may be given a fortnight after second spraying.

The goal of plant disease management is to reduce the economic and aesthetic damage caused by plant diseases.
